Abad, 'apologist for fraud,' must resign, say tutors

MANILA, Philippines — A group of private tutors in Manila has called for the resignation of Education Secretary Armin Abad, accusing him of being an "apologist for fraud" in the education system. The group, known as the "Tutors' Association of the Philippines" (TAP), claims that Abad has failed to address the rampant cheating and plagiarism in the country's schools. They argue that Abad's policies have allowed for a system where students can buy their way into higher education, leading to a decline in the quality of education. The association demands that Abad resign immediately and that the government take steps to reform the education system, including stricter regulations on admissions and a focus on improving the quality of teaching and learning.

These findings suggest that a number of factors may be important in determining the effectiveness of a given intervention. Further research is needed to clarify the mechanisms by which these interventions may be effective. The findings also suggest that the effectiveness of these interventions may be influenced by the characteristics of the individuals receiving them. For example, individuals with higher levels of motivation and self-efficacy may be more likely to benefit from these interventions. Future research should investigate the role of these factors in determining the effectiveness of these interventions.

US probe aims to hit comet

WASHINGTON, D.C. (AP) — A U.S. probe aimed at hitting a comet is set to launch in the next few months, according to a report from the U.S. Space Administration. The probe, called the Deep Impact mission, is designed to study the interior of a comet by crashing into it. The mission is part of a larger effort to understand the origins of the solar system and the potential for life on other planets.

The probe is being launched by a Delta II rocket from Cape Canaveral, Fla. The mission is being managed by NASA's Jet Propulsion Laboratory in Pasadena, Calif. The probe is expected to reach the comet, named Tempel-A, in July 2005. The probe will create a crater in the comet's surface, and scientists will study the material that is ejected from the impact.

Hong Kong lovers don't know what to do in bed, says report

HONG KONG—Hong Kongers usually rank first among the international list of lovers and a sexual healer may have discovered why they don't know what to do between the sheets.

Grace Wong of the Southern Chinese territory's Family Planning Association said the number of inquiries at her agency rocketed 50 percent last year, with many clients claiming to have no idea how to have sex.

"Some married couples are not familiar with their body parts," Wong was quoted as telling the Sunday Morning Post. "They don't know where their sex organs are."

"They don't know the physical changes associated with sexual response like males getting an erection," she added.

Recent international surveys by condom manufacturers have found the city is less than amorous. Durex last year found Hong Kongers get it together 79 times a year, while the French manage it the total, at 137 times.

Another poll even suggested Hong Kong men prefer to go to work rather than have sex.

The frenetic work ethic in the former British colony is usually blamed for interfering with the course of nature.

But the paper said sociologists believe Chinese sensibilities, which deem discussion of sex even in school as taboo, are responsible.

Ayala's computer program for public high schools

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — A computer program developed by a former state legislator is being used by public high schools in Philadelphia to help students and parents make decisions about college and career choices.

The program, called "My Future," was developed by Rep. John A. Ayala, D-Phila., who served in the state legislature from 1993 to 1997. It is a free, web-based program that allows students to explore different career paths and the educational requirements for each.

Ayala says the program is designed to help students understand the connection between their current studies and their future career goals. It provides information on various careers, the skills needed for each, and the steps required to enter those fields.

The program is accessible through the school's website and can be used by students, parents, and teachers. It is a valuable resource for students who are unsure of their career path or need more information about different professions.

It is important that a decision tree model is not used as a predictive model. The model is only a tool to help you understand the data and to make decisions about the data. It is not a substitute for a good understanding of the data and the problem you are trying to solve.

Michael Cacnio's paternal . . .

In these works, Cacnio certainly seems nostalgic. He tells of how Maang Angel would rise early to take him and his siblings for bike rides or for jogging, after which they would have breakfast at the market or at Alang's Lungs, popular among Malabon folk to this day. Such are the tributary scenes he has captured in honor of the man who not only sired him but cultivated in him a zeal for art and proper parenting.

The tree-climbing and piggyback ride with dad in "Honey-Honey" speak of the indulgence and happiness of childhood. By cleverly positioning their extremities through the painstakingly etching malleability from brass, the thrill of the subjects is ably evoked despite the absence of facial expression.

This is also seen in "Fly," a man swinging a child with each hand, Maypole fashion.

The sculptor is also known for his use of physics. Included in this showcase is a mobile of birds in various poses of play, some hanging, others climbing, the over-all balance and depiction of movement again showing his skill in craft and composition.

It may be said that these are the "Meditation moments" of sculpture for they pride in the audience their own fond remembrances of past precious times with their parents and mirthful or tender instances with their own children. By rendering such moments, Michael Cacnio is, indeed, his father's son.

▶ Some bright ideas on saving electricity:

1. Use natural light whenever possible.
2. Switch off lights when not in use.
3. Clean bulbs regularly. Dirt reduces illumination by 50 percent.
4. Use low wattage light bulbs in areas such as basins and closets.
5. Use lamps that provide indirect lighting from desks, beds and work areas.
6. Use compact fluorescent lights (CFL) instead of incandescent bulbs. An 18-watt CFL produces as much light as a 75-watt incandescent bulb, but uses much less power.

Remember, too, that you can save yourself up to 100% on your monthly electric bill.

Check out these money-saving tips, and become the Electric Savings Champion. You'll save money and the planet.

The planet will save money. So will you.
